HOYLAKE, England, (A) Dapper Bob Sweeney, return ing at the age of 50 to try for a title he won in 1937, led a thin line of nine Americans through the first round of the British amateur golf cham pionship yesterday.

Michael Bonallack, the British Walker Cup star who is the defending champion and Ireland's Joe Carr, a three-time winner, clearly established themselves as the class of the field over the 6,932-yard Royal Liverpool Club links.

SWEENEY, who arrived at the course just in time to tee off without practice, scored impressively over Richard De Lloyd of Wales, 2 and 1.

Of the 18 Americans who competed yesterday, nine won, including three by default, and nine were eliminated, one on a forfeit and one by withdrawal.

SWEENEY TURNED in an impressive victory, as did tall Pat Brady of Reidsville N. C., William Castleman Jr. of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., and Kenneth Benson of Brooklyn. Bud Rudolph of Los Angeles fought back from a 3-hole deficit and defeated David Hoare of England 1 up, and Phil Breitfelder of Lincoln, Neb. eliminated George Parker of Scotland, 5 and 3. Winners by default were Truman Connell, Tuquesta, Fla. Les Blue, New York and Mar-

MEMBERS OF THE OTHER CLUBS in contention for the American League pennant were hoping that Rich Rollins would prove to be just a Golden Flash in the pan . But he's just passed by Jiminez, by jiminy, to become the loop's top batter.

CLEVELAND'S YANKEE HATERS, whose name is Legion, should be happy to note that there's nary a Yank among the ten leaders in the league's batting averages or among the five leading hitters of homers.

Kirkland Homers, Drives in 5 Runs

Staff Correspondent

BOSTON—Clever Tito Francona's mouth had as much to do with the Indians' 10-0 victory over the Red Sox yesterday as Jim two out, and Kirkland was at the plate. Wil-Perry's seven-hit pitching and Willie Kirkland's five runs batted in.

inning.

Here's how it went:

THE INDIANS HAD THREE men on, son had two strikes, no balls on Kirkland and went into his windup for the strikeout pitch.

Francona provoked a key balk on the Francona, on first, shouted: "Hold it, part of good Boston pitcher Earl Wilson, hold it, Earl." So Wilson, thinking what

Plain Dealing

Indians, Twins and Angels Stay in Race by Keeping Key Players Healthy

By GORDON COBBLEDICK Plain Dealer Sports Editor

Joe Garagiola, the ex-catcher turned wit (he'll display that new talent at the Wahoo Club's luncheon at the Hollenden Friday) was asked the other day to comment upon the unusual run of injuries plaguing the major leagues this season.

"All I can say," he replied, "is that the teams that carry the most Blue Cross have COBLEDICK the best chance of winning the pennants."

It may not have been strictly true, but of this there can be no doubt: The teams most fortunate in escaping crippling injuries to star players are giving unaccustomed interest to the American League race.

Among them are the Cleveland Indians. And shall we take time out at this point to knock on wood?

IT ISN'T LIKELY THAT ANYONE will seriously challenge the statement that the New York Yankees, at their best, are the strongest club in the major leagues. But casualties to what is known as key personnel have left the Yanks so far short of their best as to throw them into a redhot dog fight with several clubs that didn't seem, in the pre-season sizeups, to be remotely comparable with

If the term "key personnel" doesn't apply to Mickey Mantle and Whitey Ford it may as well be stricken from the language. And Mantle and Ford are out of action now for nobody knows how long. With that pair operating at peak efficiency the Yankees would, in all probability, be comfortably in front today. With them not operating at all the defending champions are fighting for their very

IF IT COULD HAVE BEEN FORESEEN two months ago that Mantle and Ford would be lost for long periods -with the additional possibility that for them the whole year would be a loss-the Detroit Tigers, last season's runners-up, would have been no worse than even money to end the Yankee reign.

But the Tigers have been equally hard hit, if not more so, by injuries to—and here it comes again—key personnel. Frank Lary, their best pitcher, a 23-game winner in 1961, pulled up at the outset with a lame arm. He's so handicapped that he can't even beat the Yankees, an activity in which he has specialized throughout his career.

THEN 'AL KALINE, THEIR OFFENSIVE leader, cracked a collar bone in making a diving catch. It interrupted a season that gave promise of being the best he ever has enjoyed.

Finally Bill Bruton, their center fielder, a brilliant ball hawk and a solid hitter, pulled a leg tendon and will be lost to the team for several weeks.

Nothing very bad has happened to the Indians, the Minnesota Twins or the Los Angeles Angels, and so they're making a truly stirring fight of what many observers thought would be another walkover for the Yankees.

CAN THEY KEEP IT UP? In all likelihood yes-provided they can escape injuries of the sort that have flattened the Yanks and Tigers.

A wise man, commenting upon emphasis then being placed upon the importance of a bench full of capable substitutes, once observed, "The team that wins is the one that doesn't have to use its substitutes." No team has a Mantle, a Ford, a Lary, a Kaline or a Bruton on its bench. A healthy Willie Tasby is a more valuable asset than a crippled Mickey Mantle.

And that's why we're enjoying the best race the American League has offered since the four-team struggle won by the Indians in 1948.

Musial Bids for Bat Title at 41 NEW YORK (2)—At 41 years of age and only one point behind the batting leader with two months of the season in the books, Stan Musial is in position to become the oldest major leaguer in history to win a batting championship. A 12-game hitting streak during which he has collected the No. 1 batsman today if 20 hits in 44 tries has lifted San Francisco's Filipe Alou Musial's average from .300 to hadn't enjoyed a productive .347. The St. Louis Cardinals' week. The Giants' outfielder

Wilson, also burning, threw his next pitch, Kirkland pounded it into the right field bullpen and it was 4-0. The runs were important, for Wilson, entering the seventh inning, had allowed only two hits. There is no telling how rough he'd have been had those four early runs not come across. But the tribe wrapped it up with four in the seventh and Bubba Phil-

HERE'S THE CLUBHOUSE play-by-play: Reporters first questioned the umpires. Said Runge: "I was behind Pete :: Runnels (Boston first baseman) and I heard nothing a I don't think Wilson heard any holler, either. I called the balk because it seemed Wilson fell off the mound. Then when he saw Higgins come out, I suppose he thought he might as well say he heard lips hit a home run in the Tito vell. Umpires Ed Hurley and Flaherty corroborated this statement.

The Boston quarters, how-ever, had no doubt that Francona made the yell.

"WE ALL HEARD on the bench," said pitching coach Sal Maglie. "He yelled it three times. Not only on that pitch but on two pitches before that.

"It was a smart play but it was stupid baseball on Wilson's part. Common sense should have told him not to stop with the pitch."

Maglie said that right in front of Wilson, and the pitcher just kept quiet. He was boiling at himself.

Runnels, the Boston player closest to the play, came out knew the scribes were going to query him and he enjoyed the attention.

"I WAS PLAYING deep for Kirkland but I hear Tito yell something," said Runnels.

What does Francona say about it?

Francona admitted making the yell, after some persua-"Come clean, Tito," said a reporter. "Too many guys have put the finger on you." Francona smiled slyly. He didn't want to say anything. But when he asked who hadsquealed. He was told. "Al right, then," he said. " yelled it. First time I've ever
